The Public Servants Association (PSA) has approached the Sol Plaatje University in the Northern Cape regarding reported plans to implement mandatory COVID-19 vaccinations from 1 February 2022.

This directive apparently came from the Vice-Chancellor. The PSA, as representative Union of university employees, has written to the Vice-Chancellor to establish the veracity of these reports and to establish when consultation on this matter took place with the institution's employees, including discussing possible advantages and disadvantages of vaccinations.

The PSA is awaiting the response from the University to allow the Union to take appropriate action.
