The Public Servants Association (PSA), representing thousands of public-sector employees in Mpumalanga, welcomes and supports the recent cabinet reshuffle announced by Premier Mr. Mandla Ndlovu.

The reshuffle comes at a critical time, following serious allegations of procurement irregularities, including the Education Department's controversial R2 million laptop procurement scandal. The PSA believes that decisive leadership action is essential to restore public confidence and uphold accountability within the provincial administration.

The Premier dismissed Ms. Cathy Dlamini as MEC for Education and Ms. Makhosazane Masilela as MEC for Economic Development and Tourism. The PSA notes the appointment of Ms. Lindi Lettie Masina as the new MEC for Education; Ms. Jesta Sidel as MEC for Economic Development and Tourism; Ms. Khethiwe Moeketsi as the new MEC for Agriculture, Rural Development and Environmental Affairs; and Ms. Nompumelelo Hlophe, who will now serve as MEC for Social Development.

The PSA views these changes as a positive and necessary step to improve service delivery, promote ethical leadership, and address public concerns about maladministration and corruption. As a union committed to protecting the rights and interests of public servants and ensuring the efficient use of public resources, the PSA urges the newly appointed MECs to prioritise transparency, sound financial management, and a renewed focus on service delivery that benefits all residents of Mpumalanga.

The PSA will continue to monitor the impact of these leadership changes and engage constructively with the provincial government to support reforms that advance good governance and create a professional, corruption-free public service.
