The Public Servants Association (PSA) extends wishes of support and encouragement to the Matric Class of 2025 as these learners prepare to write the final examinations of their school journey.

This is a significant milestone that reflects years of learning, sacrifice, and determination as well as a new chapter in life. The PSA recognises that these learners' journey has not been easy. Learners in South Africa face immense challenges, from under-resourced schools and overcrowded classrooms, to long travelling distances, financial difficulties, and the pressures of navigating a society where opportunities are often unevenly distributed. Despite these obstacles, the Class of 2025 has endured, reflecting the extraordinary strength of South Africa's young people.

Learners are reminded that success comes in many forms. Whilst academic achievement opens doors, determination, hard work, and perseverance are equally important. Setbacks are stepping stones toward opportunities.

The PSA expresses gratitude to the educators and school administrators who have stood beside learners throughout this journey. This dedication, often under challenging conditions, has given learners knowledge, skills, and confidence to take on the examinations.

The PSA further calls on parents and guardians to remain present and actively involved during this period. Encouragement, support, and belief in learners are of critical importance. Working together, parents, educators, communities, and society at large, can assist learners to succeed academically and develop the confidence to contribute meaningfully to the country.
