Tribute to our shop steward a fallen hero: Juliet Dakada

The PSA is deeply saddened with the loss of its dedicated shopsteward, Mrs Juliet Dakada who ensured that the PSA's name at the Labour Court in Johannesburg is always lifted high and always prioritised members interests. Ms Dakada had a passion for labour related work and served members of her constituency diligently mostly by stepping in for their rights to ensure labour peace in the workplace.

The PSA would like to pay tribute to the fallen hero, who was recently murdered while fighting for her and her granddaughter's lives. The PSA is outraged by the senseless way she lost her life and is at a loss for words in describing her caliber and excellent leadership traits and offers deepest sympathy to the family, friends, and colleagues of the deceased. The PSA, as a staunch supporter of campaigns aimed at eradicating violence against women and children, is saddened by the increased wave of violence since the beginning of the COVID-19 lockdown. As we are entering Women's Month, we urge our members and the public as a whole to stop violence against women and children, also not forgetting men who are abused and suffer in silence.

In conclusion we would like to honour the life of Mrs Dakada , while she lived she fought the injustice and she died fighting for injustice in society as a whole.

Rest in Power
