Victory to PSA members: Department of Health

The PSA successfully defended members at the Labour Court after the Gauteng Department of Health applied to the Labour Court to review and award in favour of the members.

The PSA filed a dispute at the Council on behalf of six members who were not considered for an advertised post of Assistant Director. The employer appointed other employees who did not meet the requirements. The arbitrator ruled in favour of all six members by ordering the employer to pay the members compensation and set aside the appointments of those employees who did not meet the requirements. The employer took the award for a review to Labour Court. The Labour Court recently dismissed the employer's application and ordered it to comply with the award.
